Style is an explicit deployment condition; target control is never used